

Monday 8th February

Learning Objectives:

Introduction to Florida and Travel Brochures.	Fractions - Greater than 1	Topic: Florida - Theme Parks
---	----------------------------	------------------------------

Spelling

Mrs Evans' group - convenience, correspond, criticise

Mrs Tweddle's group - minute, natural, naughty

Please practise your spellings during the week both as individual words and as part of a sentence. I will test you on zoom on Friday!

English

This week you will be writing non-chronological reports (I have included a sheet on the website to refresh your memories) in the form of a travel brochure.

Our theme is - 'Florida'

Each day you will complete a page of your brochure and at the end of the week you will complete your front cover.

Today you will be completing your first page - 'An Introduction to Florida'

Look at the page below: This is a page about another American state - Montana

I would like you to complete your first page in this format.

Please don't mention the Everglades, Disneyland or Kennedy Space Centre in detail as these will be the places we are looking at during the week.

Just write generally about what Florida has to offer - beaches, cities, theme parks!

You can either write by hand or complete your work on a computer. I have put a blank sheet on the website if you need it.

Visit Montana!

If you have been a nature lover all your life and you are looking for your next great adventure, then one of the best holiday destinations for you would be the beautiful state of Montana. Known as the 'Big Sky country' for its vast open, blue skies, Montana is a land for adventure, peace and tranquillity.

Here we have an introduction

Why visit?

Montana features spectacular snow peaked mountains, vast prairie lands, and beautiful forests. Wild rivers and streams are filled with rainbow trout and other fishes. An abundance of elk, antelope, and other wildlife are found in Montana. It's the kind of place that remains with you after you've left its beautiful wilds behind.

Why?

Where is Montana?

Montana is located in the north Western United States. The land locked state shares a 545-mile (877 km) border with three Canadian provinces: British Columbia, Alberta, and Saskatchewan. It borders North Dakota and South Dakota to the east, Wyoming to the south and Idaho to the west and southwest.

Where?

What is the Climate like?

Although it can get extremely cold in Montana, due in part to Montana's northern location, there is a great deal of diversity in state's weather. In fact, Montana is seldom consistently cold or hot. The state's low humidity translates into temperatures that are neither oppressively hot nor cold. Average daytime temperatures vary from 28 degrees in January to 84.5 degrees in July. Rainfall is generally light, with most falling between May and July. Average rainfall for the western part of the state is 18 inches a year; 13 inches for the east. During July

What?

Below are some websites which will give you help completing the different sections.

<https://www.ducksters.com/geography/state.php?State=Florida>

<https://kidzfeed.com/florida-facts-for-kids/>

Maths

Warm up:

Spend 10-15 minutes practising and testing your times tables using the practise sheets.

Today we are going to be learning about

Fractions greater than 1

Head over to the website (video resource centre) to see me teach this - lessons 1 and 2.

Have a go at one or two worksheets - green, orange, red and blue.

If you need more practise or don't understand work through the PowerPoint on the website.

Topic

Florida - Theme Parks

Because we will be writing about WaltDisneyWorld during English tomorrow, I would like you to spend this session researching.

I would like you to look into the different theme parks that make up Disneyland Florida.

Use the website to help you complete the research sheet I have put on the website.

<https://www.disneyworld.co.uk/>