Homework . . .

This week we'd like you to talk about what you've learnt in our Seasons and Weather Topic...

We would like you all to post a picture on the blog to show something you've learnt about in our topic: perhaps you might like to make a 'cloud in a jar', like we did in class, or recreate our 'shaving-foam cloud' experiment; perhaps you'd like to paint a picture showing the different Seasons, or a make a 'Seasons tree', perhaps you'd like to create a wonderful Autumn picture using a collage of amazing coloured leaves, or write about what you like doing in different types of weather; perhaps you'd like to make a Weather wheel, or a wind spinner or wind sock; perhaps you'd like to try making your own Anemometer or rain gauge. Anything goes, as long as it's connected to our topic, so be inventive and enjoy!

When you have finished your homework, your next job is to post a photograph of what you've done on the school blog-site, using the username and password in your 'Amazing Me' book.

To find the blog site, you will need to go to our school website (<https://www.buriton.hants.sch.uk/>), then go to 'Children', select 'School Blogging' and click on 'Menu'. Select 'Pupil login', then find 'Diamonds' on the Class bar, and enter your username and password. Choose 'Create Post' to upload your photo and type a few words. You can also make an avatar by clicking on 'Edit profile'. You can also comment on other friends' work (remember to always be kind).

Good Luck!
